More than 3,000,000 Pounds Pledged in Robertson County.

Editor KENTUCKIAN:

The reports coming in from the Western Districts, of the work accomplished there, during the past ten days, are extremely gratifying to the officers and members of the Association.

Dr. J. W. Dunn, Chairman of Robertson county, with a large party of splendid workers, has just returned home from that section, and it must have been glorious "to have been there."

More than three million pounds of tobacco was pledged as the result of the work of these men, and still they clamor for more men to instruct them. In Murray, Ky., Monday, one thousand acres were pledged at one meeting. This shows the mighty work of our committeemen in Calloway. "Seeing is believing," and our people only have to explain our methods of handling the tobacco and tell them what we have accomplished in the past two years, and then they are ready for the pledges.

The work of organization is moving along nicely, several counties waiting now for our men, and we are sending them forward as rapidly as we can.

Let every member rally to the leaders and by your loyal support aid to greater victories than we have yet achieved. F. G. EWING,

HAS CLOSE CALL.

Graves County Man's Timely Leap For Life.

Paducah, Ky., Oct. 27.—Just a Henry Bailey, of Pryorsburg, twenty miles from Paducah, undertook to drive across the Illinois Central tracks, between his home and Wingo, the Louisville-Memphis train, which leaves here at 8:05 o'clock, came into sight, and he whipped his horses. A tug snapped and the rig stopped still. Bailey turned a back somersault out of his rig, alighting on his head and rendering himself unconscious. The horses were killed and the rig demolished. Bailey probably will recover.

TWO BODIES TO ASSEMBLE

"Unionists" and "Loyalists" of Cumberland Church Both Convene

HERE NEXT WEEK.

Interesting Sessions Are Expected With Many Church Leaders Present.

Two Synods, each claiming to be the legal successor of the Kentucky Synod, which adjourned last year at Greenville, Ky., to meet in this city this year, will hold their sessions here next week. At the adjournment of the Synod at Greenville last year it was announced that the session would be held here, beginning at 7:30 p. m. on Tuesday, Oct. 30. At this hour the Kentucky Synod "A," or the "unionists," will meet in the auditorium of the First Presbyterian church, and at the same time the "loyalists" will meet in the Cumberland Presbyterian church.

"The Cumberland Presbyterian," the organ of that church at Nashville, in its issue of Oct. 25, gives a concise history of the union movement.

"The Cumberland Presbyterian church put itself on record on various occasions as being in favor of organic union with another church. Several of these expressions were made by the founders of the church, the first finding expression as early as 1810, and the last in 1874.

"In 1903 the Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church met in Nashville. The Presbyterian church was at that time completing the revision of its Confession of Faith. In view of this revision, the Cumberland Presbyterian Assembly, by a unanimous vote, appointed a committee on union. The Presbyterian Assembly appointed a similar committee. These committees in joint conference agreed upon a basis of union, which was submitted to the assembly of each church in 1904, and each assembly transmitted the proposed basis of union to its presbyteries, for their action thereon.

"The Cumberland Presbyterian Assembly transmitted the proposition to its presbyteries by more than the two-thirds vote required by law. The subject in all its bearings was discussed pro and con in the prints and on the floors of the presbyteries; the result being an approval of the basis of union by a constitutional majority of the presbyteries. The Assembly at Fresno in 1905 canvassed the returns, and declared the union constitutionally agreed to. It charged its committee, in co-operation with the Presbyterian committee, to arrange all details necessary to put the union into full force.

was ready to be submitted to the Decatur Assembly last May; but before it could be laid before the Assembly, the anti-unionists appealed to the civil courts, asking for an injunction to restrain the Assembly from declaring the union operative. After an exhaustive argument by able lawyers, Judge W. C. Johns announced his decision, to the effect that the Assembly had a right to proceed.

"After this appeal to the civil courts had failed, the Assembly declared the union operative, and adjourned to meet in 1907 as a part of the Assembly of the reunited church.

"Having recited the various steps by which the two churches were united, it can be seen that all sessions, presbyteries and synods formerly under the jurisdiction of the Cumberland Presbyterian Assembly are now under the jurisdiction of the Assembly of the reunited church; all ministers, elders and deacons are now office bearers in this reunited church; and all members of the former Cumberland Presbyterian Church are now members of the reunited church."

In the two synods there are sixty-two ministers, and one elder each from the 208 churches in the State, if all are represented. This will give a possible vote of 270 votes in the two bodies. This is the membership shown by the minutes of the C. P. General Assembly held at Decatur, Ill., last May. There will be a good many visitors present and an attendance of at least 300 may be expected.

A committee is actively at work to secure homes, and all members of both bodies will be entertained. Citizens of other churches will assist in furnishing entertainment for those who attend.
